

Can you recognize the PDA adult who arrives in your practice?

The PDA profile of autism runs in families. If you work with a PDA child, it is highly likely that one or both parents are PDA. It will be important to consider where and how PDA runs through the generations to best support the child.

This is because, PDA expresses itself “in relationship to” the environment and so the parent and child may express their traits differently and struggle then to fully understand and appreciate one another.
